

SEEK EXTENSION OF MAIL DELIVERY TO SOUTHERN LIMITS

A meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening, with Mayor H. H. Smith presiding, all Councilmen and the city engineer being present.

Several protests on weed assessments were presented in writing to the Council, and were referred to the street committee.

The Council reported applying for mail service to Vale street, the new city line of Daly City, near Colma, and instructed the city clerk to write the postmaster, asking for the service.

As the postal department requires several improvements in delivery districts, a request from the Council will open an investigation.

The Christmas tree committee extended thanks to all who took part in the successful affair, and expressed a desire for even a bigger affair next year.

The new milk ordinance was laid over for correction and will be presented for the first reading at the next meeting.

The city planning committee was instructed to investigate the new idea of the Regional Plan Association, which will bring about a greater San Francisco bay district, and report their findings at the next meeting.

A petition signed by a large number of residents asking permission for a meat market and grocery store on the corner of Hanover and Oliver streets was presented. As this is in a residential district, the Council laid the request over to learn if there are any residents who object to the granting of the request, and if so they may also present a petition asking for a denial of the same. It has been the intention of the Council to keep the residential districts of our city clear from stores, shops and factories through the zoning ordinance, but where a majority of the property owners demand a change, the Council has always considered such action.

The next meeting of the City Council will be held January 23.

CELEBRATES TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF WEDDING

Mrs. Earl Abbott, of 630 Bellevue avenue, was tendered a surprise party last Friday afternoon in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of her wedding.

The dining room and table were attractively decorated for the occasion. A doll dressed as a bride occupied the center of the table, and at each place was a tiny white paper candy basket, edged with silver, and a little wedding bell on top.

The guest of honor was showered with many lovely silver gifts.

Those present were: Mrs. Ed. Wallace, Mrs. S. Eldrup, Mrs. M. Fahey, Mrs. C. Anderson, Mrs. Wm. Cullen, Mrs. W. Reiman, Mrs. George Cofer, Mrs. E. H. Jordan, Mrs. A. Stewart, Mrs. A. Sickols, Miss E. Abbott, Miss E. Chaney.

LADIES' AUXILIARY OF CO. 4
SELECT OFFICERS FOR YEAR

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Company No. 4, Daly City Volunteer Fire Department, were invited to hold their meeting on Thursday evening of last week at the home of Mrs. S. A. Landini, on Winchester street.

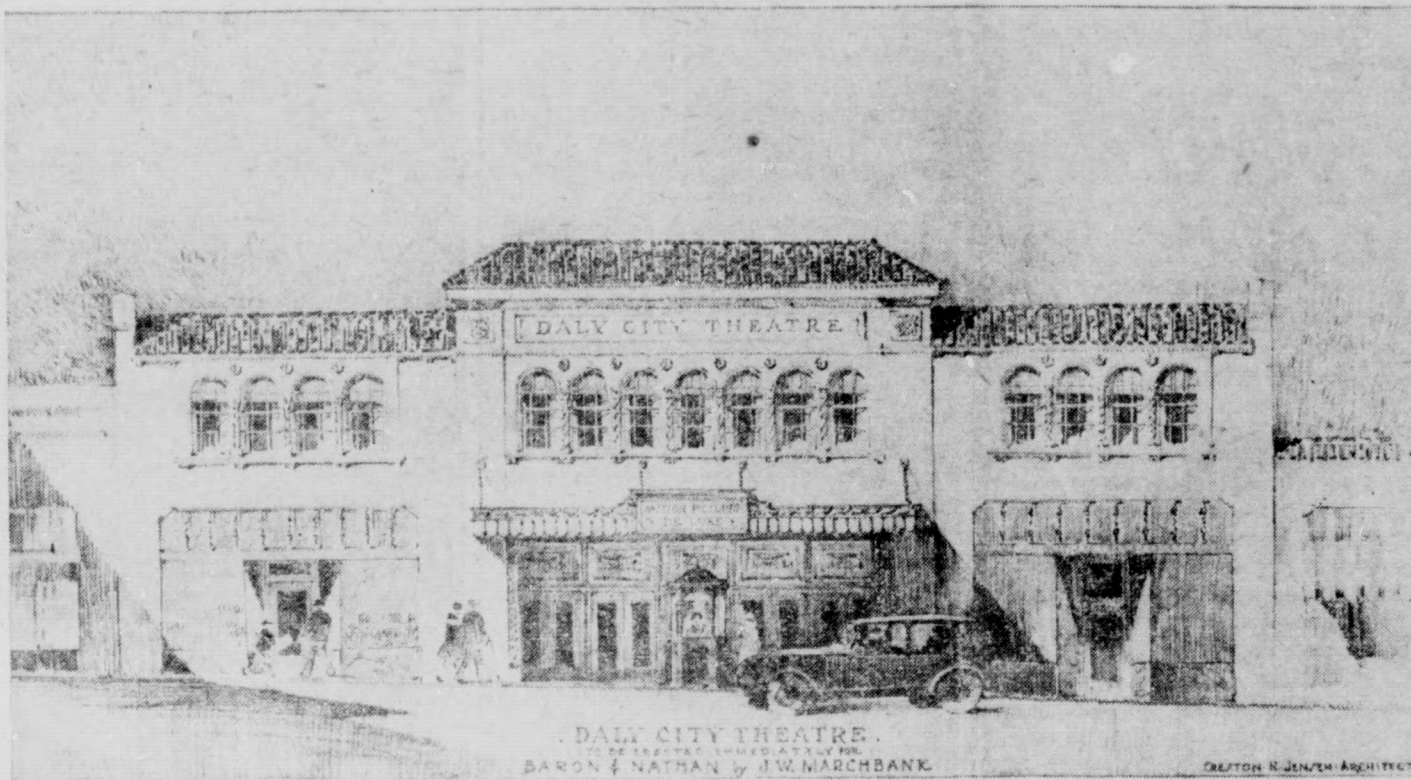

Officers were nominated and elected, the following being chosen: Mrs. E. Olivetti, president; Mrs. R. Fopiano, vice-president; Mrs. A. Fonseca, secretary; Mrs. E. H. Jordan, treasurer; Mrs. G. R. Augustien, marshal.

After the election the officers were installed by Mrs. S. A. Landini, who had filled the president's chair so well last year.

At the close of the meeting the ladies were invited into the dining room, where the hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. McGuinn, served a tempting supper that was greatly enjoyed by the ladies.

REAL ESTATE FIRM
OCCUPIES NEW HOME

The old landmarks of Daly City are disappearing one by one, and in their place are rising modern buildings. The site of one of the old landmarks, between Knowles and Theta avenues, on Mission street, is now occupied by a most modern and up to date apartment block, the Lindberg apartments, 6446 Mission street, the new home of the Community Realty Company. This new building stands on a 25 foot lot and is one of the most modern in Daly City. It consists of three apartments and the office occupied by the Community Realty Company. This enterprising firm is very optimistic in regard to the future of Daly City, and predicts a great deal of building activity during 1928.

New Motion Picture Theatre
Will Be Erected in Daly CityDALY CITY THEATRE.
BARON & NATHAN, ARCHT. J. W. MARCHBANK, ARCHT.

Daly City has been most fortunate during the past year in the number of substantial buildings erected within the city limits. And while the increase in the number of business buildings and homes has been most satisfactory, even surprising to some, the more optimistic have prophesied that the coming year will see even greater achievement.

As an indication of the foundation for this belief, comes the announcement that Daly City is to have a new motion picture theatre, a first class theatre of which we may all be proud.

The new theatre is to be located at the corner of Mission and Flournoy streets, an ideal location, and it will be as fine a motion picture house as can be found in this section.

The new building will be a combination theatre and store building, as shown in the above illustration, and will be a beautiful and substantial structure.

The location of the property is such that with the opening of the San Jose avenue viaduct and the proposed development of the Ocean Shore boulevard, with frequent street car service on Mission street and San Jose avenue, the larger portion of the residential territory in San Francisco immediately adjoining Daly City will be drawn upon for patronage to the new theatre.

Baron & Nathan, who are well known in the amusement world, have secured a long time lease on the new theatre and promise to give the people of Daly City high class pictures and vaudeville.

Creston H. Jensen is the architect in charge of the new theatre, and he has designed a building that is most pleasing in appearance, one that would be a credit to any city.

The plans will be ready in about two weeks, it is understood, when bids will be sought for the erection of the new theatre. Work will begin immediately upon the letting of the contract, and will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

The builders of this worth while community enterprise feel that they have been fortunate in securing this valuable location for the theatre, and believe that in the near future it will be the center of a large population. They have watched the progress of this city and are convinced that Daly City is bound to increase in population in a manner to surprise the most optimistic.

That the new theatre, under the management of Baron & Nathan, will be a financial success from the opening night seems assured.

Daly City has been growing so rapidly of late that the need for a new theatre has been evident to all, and as the people of this section are entitled to the best, it is most gratifying to know that this imposing structure is to be erected. With high class motion pictures and vaudeville presented in an ideal setting, the people of Daly City will have one more proof that "Daly City is a good place to live."

J. SYME IS INJURED
IN AUTO ACCIDENT

J. Syme, of Hillcrest Drive, suffered painful injuries last Saturday as the result of an automobile accident. In company with his daughter Margaret and William Campbell, he was driving along Seventh avenue, at Judah street, when a machine driven by M. Pierotti, of 3157 Steiner street, struck the right rear fender of Mr. Syme's car with such force as to completely overturn his machine.

Mr. Syme was taken to the Emergency hospital and later removed to Morton hospital, where it was found that he had suffered a badly injured right hand and a fracture of the left shoulder. The other occupants of the car were bruised, while the car was badly wrecked.

On Tuesday Mr. Syme was able to return to his home, where he is under the care of a physician.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT

A group of friends were entertained by Mrs. J. Chisholm at the Mark Hopkins Hotel on Wednesday evening. During the evening Mrs. Chisholm announced the engagement of her sister, Miss M. Wright, to Mr. D. Broom, of 15 Gambetta street, the wedding to take place in mid-summer. The evening was spent in a very enjoyable manner. Solos were rendered by some well known artists, who were ably accompanied at the piano by Professor T. Eugene Goudy, of 209 Hillcrest Drive. At the termination of the party, Miss Elsie Moir, a very intimate friend of Miss Wright, presented the prospective bride with a most elaborate bouquet of roses, the gift of Mr. H. Lindsay, landscape artist of Burlingame.

GRACE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

We were more than glad last Sabbath to see the attendance back at more than before holiday time, and all seem to be inspired to work, which is a most uplifting sign.

The Christian Endeavor was led by Mr. William Pilgrim and was a very enthusiastic meeting, having as our guest Mr. Dunn, of the Golden Gate Union, who gave us real encouragement.

The evening service was of more than usual interest and we believe some have a new conception of why people go wrong.

The theme for Sabbath evening will be, "Christain Manhood Over Against Heaven," or two sides today as the world sees it.

Come and help us with a real good evening's worship.

CHAS. H. GATCHELL, Minister.

SCOUTS TO CELEBRATE
BIRTH OF MOVEMENT

Wednesday, February 8, is the eighteenth birthday of the American Boy Scout movement. Plans have been made for a week of intensive Scout activities, so people of San Mateo county may be made more fully acquainted with this great character-building program for boys that supplements the work of the homes, schools, churches and community organizations, according to the announcement by Edward A. Barrer, county Scout executive.

The district committee has been working for some time to perfect the various details and program connected with this anniversary week, and has obtained the aid and co-operation of many service clubs.

Sunday, February 5, is Boy Scout Sunday, and many churches will observe it with special services. The Scouts are urged to attend their respective churches in full Scout uniform.

The anniversary rally, which will be one of the big features of the week's celebration, will take place Wednesday, February 8, at the new San Mateo high school gymnasium.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS

Beginning Monday evening, January 16, Elizabeth M. Kneese, county clerk, will have a deputy registration clerk at the John D. Daly library from 7 until 9, for any one wishing to register in the evening.

The following registration clerks have been appointed:

Mrs. Charles McKee, 79 Irvington street.

Mrs. Margaret Fahey, 613 Bellevue avenue.

Mrs. G. R. Augustien, 510 Evergreen avenue.

Mrs. J. Hawkins, 139 Knowles avenue.

Chas. Shoup, 116 Miriam street.

Anyone wishing to register at the City Hall can do so with City Clerk B. C. Ross or Judge Ellis C. Johnson.

HILLSBOROUGH WILL TRY MANAGER PLAN

The town of Hillsborough, long an aristocrat among California communities, has joined the list of municipalities which function under a city manager. At a special election held last Saturday the citizens, by a vote of 53 to 11, adopted an ordinance submitted on referendum by the town trustees. The ordinance will become effective on January 19, and in the meantime the trustees will announce the appointment of Hillsborough's first city manager.

NEW TRANSBAY SPAN
PROJECT LAUNCHED

A new transbay bridge project between San Mateo and Alameda counties was under way yesterday with publication in official newspapers of notices of application for a franchise.

The application is made by Albert Mansfield, police judge and attorney of Redwood City, who said it is backed by eastern capital and that he was named to file it.

The proposed bridge would extend a distance of 45,000 feet from Sunnyvale avenue and State street, San Mateo county, to the foot of Webster street, Alameda. It will be 40 feet wide and so built that its width can be doubled.

Mansfield's application comes before the supervisors of San Mateo county at their meeting on March 5.

PASSING OF F. E. BAUMAN

Frederick E. Bauman, of 20 Miriam street, passed away Wednesday last week. He was the idolized husband of Florence Bauman, and was a native of Germany. Mr. Bauman leaves many friends here and in San Francisco, where he was employed by Hale Bros. for many years. The funeral took place last Saturday at 2 p. m. from the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co., 6254 Mission street. Cremation was at Cypress Lawn Memorial Park.

BUILDING PERMITS

City Clerk B. C. Ross reports the issuance of the following building permits during the past week:

Peter C. Morgan, 736 Niantic avenue, four rooms.

Victor Bjorkman, 74 Partridge Lane, five rooms; 82 Partridge Lane, five rooms.

John Hontales, 6298 Mission street, alterations.

Charles Duerner, 968 Brunswick street, one room addition.

TO EXTEND RUNWAY
AT MILLS AIRPORT

Supervisors of the Mills Field airport have ordered the board runway lengthened to 750 feet in preparation for the new endurance flight record attempt of Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and Lieutenant Geo. Pond. The two aviators, who fell short of the record by three hours in December when their gasoline supply was exhausted, plan another try for the record within the next few weeks. Their plane has been overhauled and its gasoline carrying capacity has been increased.

VETERAN FIREMEN
INSTALL OFFICERS

The monthly meeting of the Veteran Firemen's Association was held on January 6 at Company No. 2 fire house. The meeting was well attended and business of great importance was transacted.

The report of the financial secretary for the year 1927 was read, and showed a successful and prosperous year for the association. Four applications for membership were received and favorably voted upon.

A recommendation was made to the board of directors to arrange for a social program for the ensuing year.

A full report of the whist party held November 19 was turned in by the President, A. J. Green, who has acted as chairman of the whist committee. The association voted to make the whist an annual event.

February 11 was set as the date to hold the annual banquet. The place will be selected by the board of directors at a meeting which will be held on Wednesday evening, January 18, at the home of Director Arthur Bodien.

Under the head of new business the newly elected officers were installed by Comrade Chas. M. Shoup. The following are the officers of the association for the ensuing year: Larry Shaw, president; Julius Twisten, vice-president; Andrew Vireno, second vice-president; Ed. Ford, secretary; Alfred Roamer, treasurer; Arthur Rickman, marshal. The board of directors are Arthur Bodien, J. J. Kennedy, Thomas Moran, H. F. Teas and F. W. Schmidt.

The principal speaker of the evening was Comrade William Koldkohl, who delivered a very eloquent and interesting address on the importance of the roll and its relation to the selection of officers for the association.

After the meeting refreshments were served, which were thoroughly enjoyed by all.

NOTED SPEAKER TO BE AT THE M. E. CHURCH

The Daly City Methodist church is very fortunate in having secured as its speaker for Sunday evening, Dr. C. W. Gawthrop, who will speak on a most vital and interesting subject, "Prohibition, Going or Coming?" He will bring to us the truth about prohibition. Come and get the facts, no matter what your opinion may be concerning the subject. You will enjoy this address. Don't forget the hour, 8 p. m. There will be special music.

Sunday morning the pastor's subject will be "Have We Outgrown Fear?" Is fear out of date? What place has fear in the world today? 11 a. m.

The Sunday school is coming back to normal again after the holiday season. We expect to reach the 125 mark before many Sundays. Come and help us go over the top.

Mr. Bud Ginsberg has taken the place of Miss Margaret Darragh as president of the Epworth League, and Miss Margaret Cameron has been elected first vice-president of the League. We invite all of the young people of Daly City to attend the League meetings on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. You will be inspired by the service.

On Sunday, January 22, the pastor will baptize several children. Any one desiring to be baptized at this time kindly notify the pastor.

THE CARPENTER

I wonder what He charged for chairs at Nazareth.

And did men try to beat Him down

And boast about it in the town—

"I bought it cheap for half-a-crown

From that mad Carpenter?"

And did they promise and not pay,

Put it off to another day;

O, did they break His heart that way,

My Lord, the Carpenter?

I wonder did He have bad debts,

And did He know my fears and frets?

The Gospel writer here forgets

To tell about the Carpenter.

But that's just what I want to know.

Ah! Christ in glory, here below

Men cheat and lie to one another so;

It's hard to be a carpenter.

—G. A. Studdert-Kennedy.

ELLIOTT L. FISHER, Pastor.

Aged Woman Ends Her Life

The death of Miss Mabel Jessie Murphy, aged 63, for year an invalid, was suicidal, it was decided by a coroner's jury at Burlingame last Monday. Miss Murphy wheeled her invalid chair to a gas stove and turned on the gas. Her body was found by her brother when he returned from work to their home in San Mateo.

SUPERVISORS MAY HAVE MORE CONTROL
OVER LAND TRACTS

More complete control of new subdivisions in the county by the board of supervisors was advocated in an address before the county board by Attorney Albert Mansfield of Redwood City, at the meeting of the board last Monday. Attorney Mansfield called the attention of the board to the need of proper ordinances which would give the supervisors authority to control the laying out of streets, and to make proper provision for school sites, zoning and other public necessities in new subdivisions opened in unincorporated territory.

The supervisors requested Attorney Mansfield to obtain similar ordinances from other counties and confer with District Attorney Swart in the matter with the idea of presenting a more complete plan for adoption in San Mateo county. The supervisors agreed that such regulation is highly desirable in view of the rapid growth of the county and the large number of new subdivisions being opened.

Bids for the paving of Bay View Heights in Belmont were opened by the supervisors at their meeting and laid over one week for consideration.

Plans and specifications for the East Palo Alto Water Works, prepared by County Engineer George A. Kneese, were filed with the board.

An order providing for the issuance of bonds for the Ravenswood Water District was submitted by District Attorney Swart and adopted by the supervisors.

A complaint against the maintenance of dog kennels at Beresford was received and filed.

At the request of Attorney J. B. Gordon, the matter of the establishment of a fire district at Belmont was continued until February 20.

BUS DRIVER BLAMED FOR FATAL CRASH

Charles E. Trude, of Los Angeles, driver of a bus of the Pacific Auto Stages, arrested on a charge of manslaughter after an inquest was held, was released on $1,000 bail for arraignment in the court of Justice Edward McAuliffe, Redwood City.

Trude was the driver of a bus that collided with another machine near Belmont on January 2, resulting in the death of three persons, and was taken into custody on order of District Attorney Franklin Swart, following the reading of the verdict of a coroner's jury, which charged that the bus driver had evidently been violating traffic laws shortly before the crash.

Trude's testimony during the inquiry conflicted with that of other witnesses in regard to the proximity of other cars at the time of the accident and with regard to other details. The findings of the jury included a recommendation that passenger stages be required to adhere more closely to the laws against seeding and hogging of the state highway.

COAST COUNCIL SHOWS
NEED FOR NEW ROADS

Recognizing the Bay Shore highway and the Skyline boulevard as two of the most important projects in Northern California, the highways committee of the Central Coast Regional Advisory Council, meeting at San Jose, recommended that the State Highway Commission allot sufficient funds for immediate completion of both projects. The council met to make recommendations to be considered when gasoline tax funds for the ensuing two years are appropriated.

Counties represented at the conference in San Jose, in addition to San Mateo, included San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa, Santa Clara, San Benito, Monterey, Santa Cruz, and San Luis Obispo. George S. Gould acted as chairman and W. G. Stewart, of the California Development Association, as secretary.

NARROWLY ESCAPE
DEATH IN BIG FIRE

Five persons narrowly escaped being burned to death early Monday morning in a fire which destroyed Henry's Chicken In at Belmont.

Trapped in the upstairs rooms of the two story frame structure by flames which swept a wood stairway, Henry Qualmaltz, the proprietor, and his wife and daughter were forced to leap from a rear window to the roof and an adjoining porch. Two employees also leaped from the window. All escaped in scanty attire, the employees, a cook and a waiter, and the members of the Qualmaltz family being unable to save their clothing. The fire is believed to have started from a defective chimney.

Matter of Retaining Youth, State of Mind

Youth is a quality, a spiritual energy, and, properly speaking, there is no "old age," but spiritual decay. "The foot less prompt to meet the morning dew" is no valid evidence of growing old, any more than to lose a leg in battle. Fussy physical activities are not the only tests of youth, Richard Le Gallienne comments in Harper's Magazine. The brain of Sophocles which gave us the greatest play at ninety, is more to the point, as also that famous saying recorded of him, in reference to the cooling of the passions with the years, that to grow old was like being set free from service to a band of madmen.

Because we grow wiser and stronger, less selfish and generally more useful to our fellows with the passage of the years is not to say that we have lost our youth. It only means that we have learned how to employ it. We do not run in every direction as we did. We know a little better what we are doing, or what we want to do; but the motive force that enables us to do it is that same energy which once drove us to make fools of ourselves at the beginning, and still provides the same "swift means to radiant ends."

Decay, disillusion, weariness; we mean these things when we speak of "growing old," but we fail to realize that these are no necessary accompaniments of the years. We may, unfortunately, inherit them, or acquire them, like bad habits, or through neglect of a proper care and exercise of our spiritual selves. Spiritual and intellectual laziness makes most people "old before their time." If we lose interest in life, life will soon lose interest in us; and it is just as possible to achieve a precocious senility in the twenties as at any later period of our lives.

Important in Life Is "Trade" of Parenthood

Parenthood is a difficult trade and should be studied; it is as much your business as your wife's to learn all you can of child nature; of things to be done and avoided if your experience with your child is to be a mutual blessing and a mutual delight, is the admonition voiced by John P. Gavit, in Children's Magazine.

If you think your own elders made certain mistakes in dealing with you it was only because they did the best they knew, never having studied this most difficult trade of parenthood. Begin now, during the babyhood of your child, to be his companion, chum and pal. It will reflect in your relationship with him in the years to come. While it is important, in a way, what you think of him, it is more important what he thinks of you; he will know you better than you know him, for one of the most essential preoccupations of every child is the study of his parents. Largely upon the intelligence with which you carry on your new job will depend the happiness and success of your son or daughter.

Fearless Men Vanishing

Human courage is of four distinct types, of which one is fast disappearing under education and industrial life. That is the conclusion of Dr. C. M. Wilson, of St. Mary's hospital, London, based on his psychological studies of soldiers and of people in civil life. The vanishing variety, says Doctor Wilson in Popular Science Monthly, is that of the person who actually feels no fear—rare in this age where there are so many things to be afraid of. Other types are of those who feel fear but hide it; those who show it but resolutely carry on; and, lastly, those who are so frightened that their fear is transformed into a reckless frenzy, like that of the small boy who whips the bully who goaded him to desperation.

Honeydew

There are several kinds of honeydew. One kind is the excretion of aphids or plant lice. Another kind is produced when aphids, leaf hoppers and other insects puncture the leaves of trees. It is a sugar exudation from the leaves. Fungi, and even the ordinary processes of over-turgescence, may also cause such sugar exudations. Bees, wasps, ants and many other insects are attracted by honeydew. Honey made by bees from honeydew usually is of poor quality, being dark and unpalatable. Entomologists say certain species of ants carefully tend colonies of plant lice for the sake of the honeydew they produce.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Paper Mill Waste

It has been the custom in the paper pulp making districts of Sweden for some years past to use white water—that is, the waste liquor from her numerous sulphite-paper mills—to lay dust on highways. This water has been found to be more satisfactory for this purpose than ordinary water, as it tends, on drying, to bind the dust and to make the roadway smooth. To still further add to its effectiveness, it has been suggested that a quantity of hygroscopic salt, which absorbs humidity from the air, be added to the white water so as to keep the surface of highways slightly moist.

Forehead Is Cracked

Virginia's mother was preparing the menu for dinner, and her forehead was twisted in a puzzled frown. "Mother," exclaimed the child suddenly, "what are you worrying about?" "Whatever made you think I was worrying?" the mother asked her. "Well, your forehead is cracked!"

SIDELIGHTS

Mrs. R. C. Shoop Flick Taylor Judie Learn Trimmer Chronister, of York, Pa., is only 37, but has had seven husbands, four of whom met death in accidents. In spite of her tragedy filled life, Mrs. Chronister is still optimistic and declares that her present husband is the best of the lot.

It's a little late in the season for a lawn mower story, but this reached us only last week. John Haggerty shot himself while mowing the school lawn at a certain school. The machine picked up a .38 calibre cartridge from the grass and squeezed it so as to shoot Haggerty in the head, making a flesh wound.

There are many kinds of grafting, but Atlanta furnishes a unique example of a modern sort. Miss Edna Barnett's ear had to be removed after being severely burned when she fainted and fell into an open fireplace. Surgeons have grafted on a new one, fashioned from cartilage of a rib and skin from another part of her body.

And, speaking of graft, Dr. C. E. Hill, a dentist of Shreveport, La., has found that it is a word not to be lightly used. He wrote across an alimony check sent to his wife the words "September graft." A judge fined him $50 and sent him to jail for ten days for contempt of court.

Jason Wetherell, 61-year-old negro of Kingston, N. C., is a persistent if not reliable prophet. Each year since 1917 he has predicted that he would die on a certain date. His last set date having passed more than a week ago, he now asserts that he will shuffle off not later than next August and has invited his friends to stand by to witness his exit. He is in excellent health at present.

Courtesy usually has its reward, although not often in such substantial manner as that which came to Alfred Cronberg, of Chicago. Years ago, when employed by a gentlemen's club, Cronberg had been particularly attentive to Robert Forsythe, a millionaire who died recently, leaving him $100,000 as a token of appreciation.

Thomas Reilly, payroll messenger for a Chicago factory, has reason to feel proud of his cleverness. Recently while on his way from a bank to the factory he was held up and robbed of a heavy bag carried in his car. He proceeded to the factory and took out another sack containing the payroll from under the rear seat. The bandits had secured a bag of scrap iron, which he had long carried for such an emergency.

It is now proposed to have a chief of army chaplain with the rank of brigadier general. It will seem rather odd to hear a salute of eleven guns for a preacher. And we wonder whether his prayers will be more effective than those of a Salvation Army private.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Morse will stay hitched if four marriage knots can hold them. They were married four times within two hours at Barranquilla, Columbia—by an American minister, by a notary, by the American consul and by the British consul.

Ladies whose husbands complain of their extravagance in dress may find this item useful: The Department of Labor statistics show that the average yearly clothing bill for husbands is $71.38, while that for the average wife is only $63.55.

This may be an old one, but if you've heard it, stop us. A corn syrup manufacturer received this complaint from a customer. "After taking six cans of your syrup my corns are as bad as ever."

The best parachute expert in the British army is an Irish sergeant, who takes great pride in his work. Upon delivering a parachute to an aviator he reassures the aviator by saying: "If this one doesn't work, come back and I will give you another."

Although she sold a gold brick in Los Angeles for $60,000, Mrs. W. G. Clark is no crook. The brick was real this time, made of gold taken from the Katherine Treasure Vault gold district in Arizona.

At the beginning of 1927 there were about 1,500,000 telephones in Great Britain and Northern Ireland. On the same date the five biggest cities in the United States—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Detroit—together had considerably more than twice this number of telephones.

Still, we will not be able to judge the new Ford completely until we see how one looks after a locomotive runs it a tie race for a crossing.

Dickens immortalized the phrase "Barkis is willin'," which the Nashville Banner brings up to date with the paraphrase "Willis is barkin'."

It is said that jaywalking is being reduced. But so are the ranks of the jaywalkers.

GIANT TREED ADDS TO YULETIDE JOY

A christmas tree more than a hundred feet high, hung with thousands of electric lights and topped with a great Star of Bethlehem gleamed from Twin Peaks, San Francisco, during the Christmas festival just passed. It was sponsored by the San Francisco Examiner and the "South of Market Boys," and made possible by the co-operation of public-spirited citizens and corporations.

Felled in a Mendocino county forest, the giant fir was brought to San Francisco in two sections. Truckmen of the Great Western Power Company hauled it up the steep road to the concrete base on which it was to rest. After it was spliced and set up, sailors set the branches in the holes drilled along and around the trunk. Then came the hanging of the bulbs and the many other things necessary to make a Christmas tree look magnificent.

Meanwhile the Pacific Gas and Electric Company was digging post-holes, setting up and stringing a quarter of a mile of distribution line up the long slope. Then, to complete its contribution to the Christmas joy of a great city, it set up a transformer on the mountain top, made the necessary electrical connections, provided the current, and kept the tree sparkling and gleaming and scintillating every night until the Christmas season ended and the New Year came.

HOT DOGS VS. COLLEGE

George J. Deck, of Buffalo, was poor but ambitious nine years ago, when at the age of 18 he determined to have a college education. But hot dogs blocked his way.

Casting about for some means of earning his way through college, Deck tried running a hot dog stand, and met success far beyond his fondest expectations. Business was so good that he could not take time to go to school. Soon he opened additional stands, all of which prospered.

Recently he bought out six competitors and now has what virtually amounts to a "hot dog trust" in his home city, with a warehouse, a bakery, a butcher shop, a fleet of twelve trucks and sixteen hot dog stands. His annual turnover is more than $500,000, and he draws from his business a salary equal to that of the president of the United States—$75,000 a year.

But it looks as though he will have to worry along without a college degree. Still, he holds a very desirable, if not dignified, title. He is known as "the hot dog king."

Most War Literature Inane in Character

Gen. Hugh Drum was discussing another of the innumerable books of the World War.

"These soldiers who write about war," he said, "carry platitudes and truism to unbelievable lengths. They say such things as, 'The object of a commander is to win battles,' or 'The time to attack is when you are strong and your opponent weak,' or 'The army that conquers is the one that wins.'"

"Yes, the war books of soldiers always remind me of the excursion train that stopped for seven hours in a daisy field."

"Conductor," said an old lady at the end of the fourth hour, "what are we waiting for?"

"Why, lady," he said, "we're waitin', of course, for the train to go on."—Detroit Free Press.

The present-day flapper who prides herself on using little more cloth for her dresses than for her handkerchiefs will be horrified to learn from "Modes and Manners of the Nineteenth Century" that their great-grand-mothers went even further in out-fitting Eve. "When the Nineteenth Century opened, the Empire style," says this new book, "had reduced women's clothing to scantiness more complete than anything modern styles have yet attempted: little clinging frocks with low bodices and high waists which fitted their wearers like gloves and indeed were alleged to have been put on damp."

STORY FROM THE START

Handsome, fastidious and wealthy—young St. Croix Creighton awaits his sweetheart at their tiny place. She is late, this ordinarily little Pennsylvania Dutch girl, Meely Schwenckton. Despite her seeming innocence and ignorance, she succeeds in keeping him at a distance, to his chagrin. Meely, in the Schwenckton home, where she is boarding, is altogether unlike the girl who meets St. Croix clandestinely. She is the teacher in the neighborhood school, of which Marvin Creighton, St. Croix's brother, is superintendent. Meely learns that Marvin was to have married his cousin, a titled English lady, but, believing she was attracted by the Creighton wealth, had refused the alliance. It is the rumor that St. Croix is to take Marvin's place and marry the English girl. St. Croix' jealousy is aroused by Meely's report of an aged suitor for her hand. The girl cleverly deceives him into admitting he has no intention of marrying her. Marvin visits school in his official capacity as superintendent.

"But, you see, we modern teachers, we normal school graduates, do not believe in co-education and fawce. In my government of this school, for instance, I try to have all co-education come from within, not from without."

"Fine; if you can work it; can you? And this idea of yours—teaching children 'what is for their immediate use' (and 'pleasure,' I believe you added)? Is it for their physical or mental growth that you are striving?—for what I saw as I came in here appeared to be violent gymnastics or an execution of the Charleston!"

"I was acting out a play for them—Barrie's 'A Kiss for Cinderella.' I was at the ball—"

"Um-mm," he murmured. "Acting?"

"Trying to."

"But you'll have these sectarian parents on your back! The 'plain' people, you know, are horrified at the word 'acting.'"

"But I act everything I teach—history, spelling, grammar—it's the only way I can teach."

"Now, do you know I would like to see you act spelling?"

"Well, you won't get a chance to!"

"Look here! Don't you know what a county superintendent is?"

"Oh, no! I? To you your superintendent should be as a god; one to whom you are but as form in wax, within his power to leave the figure or disfigure it," she dramatically recited a passage from "Midsummer Night's Dream," slightly adapted.

"Very well, then, how dare you cheek me and say you won't when I tell you to do a thing?"

"Because I'd rather lose my job than have you sit there and laugh at me!"

"It's not for a mere superintendent," he shook his head humbly, "to laugh at a normal school graduate!—though I'm sure, Miss Schwenckton, that the normal school course does not include histrionics! I do know that much about normal schools! However, I congratulate you."

"On my—intelligent ideas about teaching?"

"On your excellent acting."

She stiffened with alarm. "But—but you've not seen it!" she objected.

"You're sure? By the way—what role were you going to play when I passed you on the road the other day dolled up like a comic valentine?"

She caught her breath. "But—but you never looked at me! Do you see with your left ear?"

He laughed, rose abruptly, and held out his hand. "Good-by, Miss"—his eyes bored into hers like gimlets—"Schwenckton; I won't torture you any longer with my unwelcome presence!"

"Good-by," she sighed with deep relief.

"But—a few questions before I go, if you don't mind." He took out a pencil and notebook. "Your class at Kutztown normal?"

She could not answer that question offhand, apparently. "Wait a minute."

She opened a drawer of her desk, took out her diploma and handed it to him. She had been prudently keeping this diploma at hand to be ready at need when he should call.

"Um-mm," he said thoughtfully, "two years ago. You didn't teach last year?"

"No-no."

"Why not?"

"Well—I was going to be married—but, strange as it may seem to you, I got jilted."

He caught his lower lip between his teeth and stared at her. Then, with an abrupt nod, turned away and left the schoolroom.

"My G—d!" she thought, her hand pressed to her heart, "how much does he suspect?"

It was, of course, her accent that betrayed her. She could perfectly disguise it when she adopted the extreme Pennsylvania Dutch dialect, but nothing short of that could hide the foreign touch of her speech.

She could only hope that her possession of this Kutztown normal diploma would throw him off the scent.

All the Schwencktons, except the ailing wife and baby, were very tired of Aunt Rosy and longed for Susie's recovery not only for her own sake, but because it would rid them of the older woman's unpleasant company.

Meely and Mr. Schwenckton both loathed her uncleanness; Meely feared her spying upon her. Sammy hated and resented her; Lizzie was afraid of her cold-blooded spite or the humiliating defeat the child had caused her; and Mr. Schwenckton was impatient to be rid of her so that he could bring home his daughter Nettie.

And at last, in spite of unsanitary conditions, and through the occasional conniving of Meely and the doctor to outwit Aunt Rosy and Mr. Schwenckton and air the house, Susie began to rally and the baby to pick up; and a week after they were brought down from the stuffy bedroom to the less confined atmosphere of the kitchen, Susie was almost as strong and blooming as she had ever been and the baby began to get fat.

Aunt Rosy was so reluctant to leave that Meely would have suspected her of having purposely prolonged Susie's

"But Nettie," Meely felt urged to warn the child, "a man in Mr. Creighton's position would never marry a girl in your—in our—place in life. So that your 'meeting up with him' would only mean unhappiness for you—especially if he fell in love with you."

"But in them movies—" Susie interpolated.

"All right, then!" retorted Nettie with sudden passion, "I'd sooner live three weeks with a swell gentleman that I could admar, than be respectable all my life with a old man like Pop! And I'd think more of myself for doin' it, too!"

"Well, Nettie Schwenckton, if you ain't!" said Susie, only mildly scandalized; nothing could ever really rouse her to any show of feeling.

"Nettie," Meely experimentally remarked, "you know there's Mr. Marvin Creighton over at Absalom Puntz—there'd be some chance of your meeting him—and none at all, I should think, of your running into St.—Mr. St. Croix Creighton—"

"Ach, that there county superintendent, he's a stiff! I often seen him a'ready and he didn't gimme no romantic feelings. He ain't nothin' like them movie actors—"

The sound of steps on the kitchen porch interrupted her.

"Pop's back a'ready," she said, with a glance at the clock whose hands pointed to ten. "He won't like it we're up so late."

She rose, yawned, and stretching wide her arms, revealed a beautifully developing young figure.

Meely, looking at her, wondered whether, in case the girl's longing to meet St. Croix were ever realized, he would not find her even more irresistible than he was finding "Meely Schwenckton."

"Say Susie, why did you marry Pop?" asked Nettie.

"Ach—because."

"But why? Tell me! G'on."

"Ach, well, because I did."

"Ach, Susie, you must o' had some reason."

"Ach, well, a body has to marry somebody."

"Why must you marry somebody?"

"Well—if you don't want to be an old maid."

"Wouldn't you sooner be an old maid than married to Pop? I would! You couldn't o' been in love with Pop," said Nettie reflectively.

"Nettie Schwenckton, I do believe you think love is like in them movies! My sakes! That's only in them movies, Nettie. It ain't no such a thing for really!"

"But it is, too. I felt it myself a'ready!"

"Ach, you just think you felt it because you seen so many of them movies whiles you was in town there with your gramma. But it ain't no such a thing for really. You only gotta look around you a little to see for yourself it ain't no such a thing."

"I won't get married," exclaimed Nettie, "unless I can meet up with such a fellow like Rudolph Valentino or Tom Mix or whoever! I wisht," she sighed longingly, "I could run into Mr. St. Croix Creighton—"

Meely looked up from her letters and watched the girl's childish, pretty face whose commonness was almost obliterated by the soft, dreamy ecstasy that lit up her vivid youth. "I seen Mr. St. Croix Creighton once or twice or so. Gee, he's some swell dresser! And ain't he a good looker! I wisht I could meet up with him!"

Though this longing of Nettie's seemed as far as possible from immediate realization, that very night was to see it fulfilled.

"Say, Meely," Nettie appealed to the teacher, "did you ever see Mr. St. Croix Creighton?"

"I—I think I did."

"You'd know it if you did! Gee, he's got the style to him! That," affirmed Nettie, "is the only kind of fellow can have me!"

Susie sniffed. "You hate yourself—I don't think! What makes you s'pose a high-stepper like him would take up with you yet? Good lands!"

"They do in the movies sometimes—when they fall good in love."

"Yes, in them movies," Susie scoffed.

"But, Nettie," Meely felt urged to warn the child, "a man in Mr. Creighton's position would never marry a girl in your—in our—place in life. So that your 'meeting up with him' would only mean unhappiness for you—especially if he fell in love with you."

"But in them movies—" Susie interpolated.

"Ach, them movies!" Susie interpolated.

First "Topical Song" Sung by Frenchman

What purports to have been the centennial of American vaudeville was celebrated recently, and although much was said about the origin of this form of amusement, Olivier, "the fuller," a Frenchman, was left out of the picture. When Olivier was born, nobody knows, but in 1418 his booming voice went to the choir celestial on the cherubim circuit. Olivier was a poet as well as a fuller, and composed songs which he sang at his work. His songs were just frivol, yet they caught the public fancy. They were filled with hits on the foibles of the day, topical songs we would call them now. These then new lyrics, named in derision from the hamlet where Olivier lived in the valley of

THE PRICE TOO HIGH

Glorious as were the achievements of successful oversea flyers during 1927, the loss of nineteen men and three women, who failed, makes the price of this kind of glory seem too high.

Those who died in the quest for trans-oceanic flying fame, leaving no record to tell the tragic story of their fate, were:

Nungesser and Gali, between Paris and New York; Saint-Roman and Mouneyres, between Senegal and Buenos Aires, early in May.

Pedler, Knoppe and Miss Mildred Doran; Frost and Scott; Erwin and Eichwaldt, between California and Honolulu in August.

Redfern, between Brunswick, Ga., and Rio Janeiro, in August.

Hamilton, Minchin and Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, who left England for Canada August 31.

Bertraud, Hill and Payne, in an attempted flight from New York to Rome in September.

Omdal, Goldsborough, Kohler and Mrs. Frances Grayson, who left New York on December 23 for Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, on the first leg of a proposed flight to England.

Through sheer luck, Halderman and Miss Ruth Elder escaped death when their plane landed in the Atlantic near a tank steamer, in October.

Besides the loss of life attending these stunts, hundreds of thousands of dollars and the time of many ships and airplanes were spent in fruitless search for the victims.

In the present state of aviation, the cost of oversea flying seems to be much too high.

We know what the new Ford looks like, but have hardly had time to judge its tonal qualities.

Monasteries and convents are forbidden by law in Norway and Sweden.

AFTERMATH OF S-4

As a consequence of the sinking of the submarine S-4, the United States Navy is again under fire, with charges of incompetency and negligence being hurled at Secretary Wilbur and others in high command.

It is reasonable to suppose that some of the criticisms being heard are in a measure unjust, but one undisputed fact stands out which seriously reflects upon the judgment of those responsible for submarine operations. It is the fact that a submarine was permitted to maneuver submerged in a lane of traffic without adequate precautions to prevent collision upon rising to the surface.

The coast guard ship Paulding, which rammed and sank the S-4, probably had no means of knowing that the submarine was in the vicinity. The commander of the S-4 did not know that the Paulding or any other ship was near when he gave the order to rise. But he must have known that there was a possibility of meeting one, just as actually happened.

Submarines are supposed to be equipped with microphones, whereby the presence of a vessel in its vicinity may be detected. If the S-4 was not so equipped, or if the equipment was out of order, or if no one was standing by to hear the warning while the vessel was submerged—in either event there was criminal negligence on the part of somebody.

Of course, there will be an investigation, but it will not mean anything to the forty-three men who perished through the manifest stupidity of whoever was responsible for the disaster. The exercise of a moderate amount of common sense to prevent such deplorable accidents would be worth more than a dozen investigations after one occurs.

FLYING TO MECCA

It was with something akin to a shock that the Christian world heard of the advent of the railroad into Jerusalem some years ago. Somehow it seemed almost like sacrilege to invade the Holy Land with such an innovation.

Now the Mohammedan world is about to experience a similar upset of its traditions. The airplane is to replace the camel as a means of transporting faithful pilgrims to Mecca.

According to a recent communication received by the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce, a pilgrims' transport agency of British India is seeking a dozen airplanes capable of carrying twenty or more persons each for the use of pilgrims during next April, May and June. Several ships are also desired for the sea portion of the journey, from India to the port of Jeddah. Thence they desire to go by airplane to Mecca.

It would be interesting to know what Mohammed, himself once a camel driver, would think of the abandonment by pilgrims of that time honored beast of burden for the modern airplane. The idea is enough to shock a Mohammedan fundamentalist, of such there be.

A MARVELOUS CAMERA

Another triumph of modern photography is seen in a new camera, which records the flow of air currents set in motion by the engine of an airplane. The invention is based on the fact that heated air reflects rays of light.

The new camera, devised by Baron T. Shiba of Japan, head of the Tokyo aeronautical research institute, is a very complicated piece of apparatus, containing 120 mirrors, and records 20,000 exposures a second. When reproduced on a screen as a slow motion picture, the most amazing results are secured.

In one of his experiments the Baron photographed an electric light bulb being shattered by a pistol bullet. The bullet appeared to float slowly toward the bulb, gently touching it as the fragments leisurely broke apart. Such experiments are not new, but the results secured with this latest camera are said to exceed anything of the kind heretofore attained.

Taking pictures of air currents is getting photography to a pretty fine focus. Maybe some day, as has been already suggested, they will be able to photograph our very thoughts. Which would be unfortunate for most of us.

GIFT DAY JANUARY 6

While Christmas is universally celebrated as the birthday of Christ, among the Latins the gift-giving feature of the holiday season is reserved for Epiphany, on January 6.

This date is observed in commemoration of the visit of the Three Wise Men of the East to the manger of the Christ Child, to whom they brought gifts of "gold, and frankincense, and myrrh."

In Latin America the children are therefore taught to expect gifts on Epiphany, and the evening before they prepare accordingly. There being no snow in those warm countries, the children expect Santa Claus to arrive on horseback, so they provide hay for the mythical steed. Next morning they discover with delight that the hay has disappeared and in its place gifts have been left for them.

This custom is widespread throughout Cuba, Porto Rico, Haiti and other Spanish-speaking countries, and is aided by gifts of candy, toys and clothing from church organizations in the United States.

Among the poorer classes of children great joy is given by the simplest gift, such as a small bag of candy, a picture card, a bright colored toy, or other inexpensive article. Perhaps nowhere else in the world is it possible to contribute so much to the happiness of childhood by a small expenditure as among these little ones of Latin America.

BILLBOARDS BANNED

In view of the nation-wide movement for the curtailment of billboards, particularly those which are offensive to persons living in their vicinity, a decision of a Massachusetts judge is of interest.

The town of Falmouth sought to regulate the erection of billboards within its limits through a zoning law. Judge Sisk of Boston affirmed the right of the town to do this, holding that a billboard is a structure, therefore subject to such regulation.

One of the greatest hindrances to any movement for civic beauty is the billboard nuisance, which obtrudes itself on every hand. While the Outdoor Advertising industry claims to be making an effort to eliminate billboards where they are objectionable, the fact that it has fought the Falmouth ordinance and other legislation designed to protect the public from its encroachments shows that a determined public sentiment must be aroused if this nuisance is to be abated.

It might be possible to find a location where a billboard would not be objectionable, but we have never seen such a spot.

JANUARY OUTSTANDING IN TELEPHONE HISTORY

The opening of trans-Atlantic radio telephone service and also the opening of a new transcontinental telephone line, both taking place in January, 1927, calls attention again to the important part played by the month of January in telephone history. For it was in January, 1915, on the 25th of the month, that the first transcontinental telephone line was opened, and it was in January 1924, on the 14th, that transoceanic radio telephony was first demonstrated by Bell system engineers who talked to England for two hours on that occasion. Also, it was in January that the first commercial telephone exchange in the world was placed in service. This was at New Haven, Conn., on January 28, 1878.

Efficiency

DOWN the road it travels, one of the most efficient things on wheels. Coils of wire are stored inside. Tools are in the snug lockers. Pike poles and shovels are in their racks. A big winch is bolted to its frame and there are pipes of steel from which to form a sturdy derrick.

Sometimes it draws a trailer loaded with long, straight poles. Sometimes it bears a heavy reel of cable. Often its load is men. The telephone truck gets many a glance as it passes. For whether on the peace-time job of construction and maintenance or bound to where snow and sleet have made for it a battle ground, it means power, speed, efficiency, economy and human loyalty, united in the task of making telephone service better, broader, more dependable.

UNRESTRICTED IMMIGRATION NOT AN AID TO FARMERS

As a blow to one of the major arguments of the proponents of unrestricted immigration that it would aid the farmers by furnishing them with more labor, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis declares that the letting down of the immigration bars so as to permit open and indiscriminate immigration would result in few, if any, more workers for American farms. In answer to the critics of restrictive immigration who contend that the economic failure of the farmers is due to the lack of help to grow more produce, and lack of population to eat up the surplus, the Secretary of Labor asserted that America's present quota of farmers produce all the crops that can be consumed in this country and more, and that the real problem of the farmer is disposing of the surplus.

Mr. Davis further pointed out that even now when the law allows a preference to those skilled in agriculture, there are very few who apply for admission under this classification, and that during the past score of years, even when immigration to this country was at its peak, very few of them among those classified by their occupation in Europe as farmers went to the farms of the United States.

"There is something," he said, "other than a desire to help the farmer behind the propaganda that millions of immigrants are needed to consume the farmers' surplus produce. The youngest school child knows that purchases can not be made without funds. The funds which the average immigrant brings with him will not sustain him long. He must produce wealth with which to buy the surplus which is deplored, and how shall he gain it?"

Our industries are already well supplied with labor and "what would be the result of dumping the labor of millions of immigrants into the labor markets of the country?" Mrs. Davis asks.

"There can be only one motive," he concluded, "attributed to those thinking men who would flood America with millions of cheap labor to eat the farmers' surplus, and that is a desire to weaken the economic standing of the American wage earner by radically lowering wages. If population alone made a country prosperous, China economically and financially would lead the world."

SEVEN TAKEN IN RAID BY COUNTY OFFICERS

Seven persons were taken into custody Monday night in a series of raids covering San Mateo county from the north to the south, all being charged with violation of the liquor laws, under evidence gathered by special investigators from the office of District Attorney Franklin Swart.

John Oliver, Menlo Park rancher, Charles Marsac, carpenter of North Fair Oaks, William O'Keefe, Beresford, Angelo Martini, Millbrae, Rinaldo Pollini, Colma, and Jack Resta, Beresford, were booked at the county jail following the raids made on homes and soft drink establishments. Twelve gallons of alleged moonshine liquor and a large quantity of wine were gathered in by the officers. The Oliver home yielded a quantity of alleged beer, it was stated.

"THE GIRL FROM CHICAGO" AT THE EMBASSY THEATRE

Commencing January 13th, the Embassy Theatre will show "The Girl From Chicago," a thrilling melodrama featuring Conrad Nagel and Myrna Loy. Taken from Arthur Somers Roche's short story, this picture is replete with action of the type which appeals to both adults and children. As the climax, the film boasts of a chase in which a complete squadron of motorcycle policemen pursue a gang of crooks across the entire width of Chicago. A machine gun battle ensues in which hundreds of denizens of the famous Windy City underworld battle fiercely with the minions of the law.

On the Vitaphone, Rosa Raisa, the beloved soprano of San Francisco, will make her initial appearance on the Vitaphone. Assisting her will be Giacomo Rimini, also celebrated as a baritone with the Chicago Opera Company.

Other acts include Roger Wolfe Kahn and his recording orchestra, "Realization," a one-act play, and Murray and LaVerne.

FACTS ABOUT THE TELEPHONE

New York City now has considerably more telephones than there were in the whole United States in 1900.

At the beginning of 1927 London, England, had about 500,000 telephones, while Chicago had over 800,000 on the same date.

At the end of 1926 there were 412,361 miles of railroad, including all tracks, in operation in the United States and 57,960,000 miles of telephone wire.

The telephone service recently established between London, England, and Copenhagen is reported to be giving satisfaction. It is expected that, in the near future, through telephone calls may be made from Copenhagen to New York.

Switzerland has long been known as an international center for the legal and political activities of Europe. The new direct telephone cable connections between that country and Cologne, Hamburg and London may some day make Switzerland an international telephone center as well.

TEST NEW TRAFFIC SIGNALLING DEVICE

A new traffic signalling device has recently made its appearance on the streets of London. It consists of an illuminated circle of light on a signal arm, which is operated by a press button on the steering wheel. The illumination is as strong in the day time as it is at night, and never fails to attract the attention of a following driver to the fact that the car is turning to either the right or left. There is a signal on each side of the car.

MILLIONS LOST BY CARELESSNESS

Motor Car Owners Urged to Check Up on Measurements of Fuel.

Motor-car owners themselves are much to blame for the continuation of an evil through which millions upon millions of dollars annually are lost from their own pockets.

This was pointed out in a statement issued from national headquarters of the American Automobile association, in which it was asserted that the indifferent attitude of the average motorist is the chief cause for the tremendous yearly losses through short measurements in gasoline and oil.

The American Automobile association statement is predicated on the experience of many of its large affiliated clubs throughout the country, which have from time to time and with the co-operation of officials, staged investigations of and raids on certain gasoline stations suspected of systematic "short-measure" practices.

Attendants Criticized.

The experiences of the clubs, according to the American Automobile association, have definitely established that the filling station pump is not responsible for short measurement in nearly so many instances as the station attendant who recognizes in the inattention of the patron an excellent opportunity to substitute a lesser quantity of gasoline and oil than is ordered. It has also established that the oil companies and the owners of filling stations are in the great majority of instances doing everything possible to prevent sharp practice on the part of irresponsible attendants.

Co-Operation Extended.

Oil companies and owners of individual stations have given unstinted co-operation to the authorities and to the motor clubs attempting to remedy the short measurement situation, but the motorist must give his assistance in a similar manner if the evil is to be quickly and effectively wiped out.

In a recent raid staged by city officials with the co-operation of the Cleveland Automobile club, 16 stations serving from 500 to 1,000 customers daily were found to have attendants who were manipulating the pumps in such a way that short measurement of gasoline was resorted to in order to provide them with easy money, the statement points out. In one case, the raiding party found an attendant who, on three different occasions, pumped less than four gallons of gasoline into the automobile tank on each five-gallon order.

Important Principles in Automobile Safety

Education, engineering and enforcement are the three important principles in automobile safety, Arthur Hardgrave, past president of the Kansas City Safety council, told the public safety session of the sixteenth annual convention of the National Safety council, at Chicago recently.

This is proved, the speaker said, by the fact that, while 50 per cent of accidental deaths in Kansas City this year have been caused by automobiles, not a member of the safety council of that city has been involved in a fatality.

Education is the first step in public safety, Hardgrave asserted. This education must include teaching the necessity of caring for the car so that it will not skid on wet pavements as well as watching out for pedestrians and not speeding. Motorists were advised to equip their cars for safety. All controls, chains and bumpers must be in working order.

Snow-Proof Road

The first snow-proof highway to be constructed in Wisconsin has recently been completed. The highway is built a foot higher than the ground immediately surrounding. That this method of grading will cause the road to be swept clean by the wind except during the most severe storms, is the belief of engineers. The ditches on either side of the road are constructed in such a way that they may be used for sleighing.

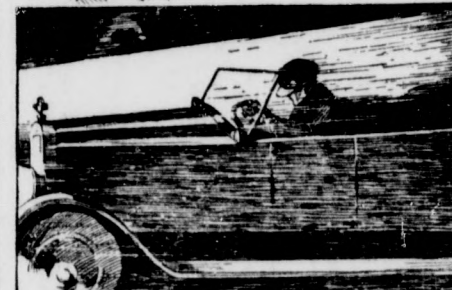

Contributory Negligence Is Often Misunderstood

"Contributory negligence is one of the oldest doctrines of the common law, and is one of the most frequently resorted to by lawyers and judges to wreck what otherwise might be a perfect case," says a bulletin issued by the legal department of the Chicago Motor club.

"Contributory negligence is the most frequent defense interposed in automobile litigation, yet its application is frequently misunderstood by motorists. The meaning of the term is that any act of omission or commission on the part of a driver or owner of an automobile that contributes to an accident bars that driver or owner from redress in court. In other words the driver must come into court free from any neglect when he seeks compensation for damages done or injuries sustained. The complications that arose from the rule of comparative negligence which at one time existed in most states but which is no longer a rule in Illinois and many other states, so confused the courts that it has been abandoned for the more workable rule of contributory negligence. The fact that the person sued was guilty of negligence and even though his degree of negligence was several times more flagrant than that of the person suing, does not help the case, if the driver suing has been negligent."

Anti-Glare Cap Is Good Protector for Motorist

Instead of having a separate pair of goggles to wear as a glare protector at night, the motorist will welcome the idea shown in the illustration, where the goggles are incorporated in the cap and, therefore, always at hand. Cut out a piece of the cap just above the visor and replace this with a piece of green celluloid.

Piece of Green Celluloid in Cap Makes Good Anti-Glare Shield for the Motorist.

Of course, the cap must be large enough to permit this. The band of the cap is cut and a button and buttonhole are provided, as indicated. When the goggles are needed, simply loosen the button and pull the cap over the eyes so that you can see through the celluloid.—William C. Thomas, Chicago, Ill., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

Automobile tires, it is found, give us 27 times the value we used to get a few years ago.

Present figures compiled by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce give the total number of motor trucks in use in this country as 2,764,000.

A new land is open to tourists with the charting of 800 miles of road in Lower California. This is historically famous country that assures new thrills to travelers.

These stock motor cars advertised to do from sixty to one hundred miles an hour could make a ten-strike with the public by furnishing first-aid kits as part of the accessories that go with the car.

Now we may have our wheels and tires painted to harmonize with the car's colors. A small tire manufacturer has already started the use of painting the tire sidewalls for use on flashy autos.

NEW WHIPPET CAR A MOTOR MARVEL

One of the sensations in the automobile world is the perfected "Whippet" produced by the Willys-Overland, Inc., and it is direct evidence that John N. Willys, president of the corporation, proposes to make good on his declaration that "there can be no monopoly in the light car field." The perfected car, and the price at which it is offered, placing it directly in competition with the lowest priced cars, has centered the eyes of the automobile industry and the motor car world in general on the enterprising Toledo manufacturer. It makes him the first manufacturer of automobiles to enter the price field heretofore exclusive to but one light car manufacturer.

The "Whippet," which has been in production for more than 18 months, holds the national fuel economy record of 43.28 miles to the gallon in a test between Los Angeles and New York City, covering a distance of 3,559 miles, under official observation of the A. A. A. In a speed test on Rockingham Speedway, Salem, N. H., a "Whippet" recently attained a speed of 71.6 miles an hour over a 50-mile route. This was officially timed.

The same engine that has accomplished these records is the power plant employed in the perfected "Whippet," now offered at the lowest price in the history of Willys-Overland.

The "Whippet" was the first light car to be equipped with four wheel brakes, setting a new trend in the light car field. The braking area of the "Whippet's" brakes is greater than any other light car.

Details of the perfected "Whippet" disclose a wider range of colors, employment of full crown fenders, a new cadet sun visor that imparts a smart military effect, and the addition of automatic windshield cleaner, rear view mirror, and a combination rear driving light and stop light. These additions make the "Whippet" the most fully equipped light car built in the four cylinder field.

Various Trades Offer

Occupation to Blind

Blind men are employed in many engineering factories. In one German electrical concern, says the annual report of the National Institute for the Blind, more than one hundred sightless people are employed, while double that number are being trained. Blindness, it is said, is no hindrance to a man looking after two or even three automatic machines. The average earning capacity of a blind operative in these works is considered to be about 80 per cent of that of a normal-sighted man.

Ninety blind persons employed in French engineering trades earn about 85 per cent of full wages. A motor factory in America employs 44 blind men, who are given the work for which they seem most competent.

Nature's Economy

Inventions during the next two or three centuries will, in the opinion of many experts, probably be in the direction of imitations of the wonderful economy and the simple, direct methods of nature. Take the electric eel as an example. Its electric organ is in no sense a storage battery, but a contrivance by which electric energy is liberated at the moment when it is required. At rest, the organ shows so small an electromotive force that a good galvanometer is required to detect it, but a sudden nervous impulse from the eel's spinal cord raises a potential of many volts, with very little heat, and so small an expenditure of matter as to defy the most expert chemist to weigh it. Fireflies, glow-worms and many deep sea fishes produce light without heat, at a cost which would make the price of a wax candle an extravagant outlay.

Migratory Bird Treaty

A resident of Ohio, who had previously raised wild fowl under a federal permit, but failed to submit the required report of operations and continued to make sales and shipments without renewal of the permit, was arraigned in Federal court at Toledo, Ohio, found guilty, and fined $300 and costs.

To engage in the business of rearing and selling migratory waterfowl, says the bureau of biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, it is first necessary to obtain a permit from the secretary of agriculture and then to comply with all requirements of state law.

These requirements are made under the migratory bird treaty act regulations to protect and perpetuate migratory species of birds passing each year between the United States and Canada.

Let's the World Go By

For the seventy-fourth consecutive season, Mrs. Richard T. Auchmuty of New York has arrived at her summer home, the Dormers, on the Lenox-Pittsfield road. She has never owned an automobile, has no listed telephone, no electric lights, no steam heat in her villa, nor a radio. She prefers to drive over the wooded roads in an open victoria. Glowing fagots in her fireplaces and kerosene lamps furnish heat and light. She is in her ninetieth year.—Boston Globe.

Canadian Lakes Beautiful

Among the seven reservations set aside by the government of Canada in the Rocky mountains there is none more beautiful than Waterton Lakes National park, which lies on the eastern slope of the Rockies where these mountains approach the international boundary. Newest American Sport

Critic-baiting has become an even greater and more typical American sport than framing prize fights or fixing horse races and championship baseball games. The man who practices professional criticism in this year of our Lord lives constantly in a metaphorical gashouse district, his head and seat in imminent prospect of bash and boot.—George Jean Nathan in Vanity Fair.

Profit by Past Errors

The past is gone, and gone forever. You may learn by your mistakes, but do not be guilty of the sin of constantly worrying over them. Turn your face toward the future. Give your mistakes and blunders a decent burial in the past, and let the memory of them furnish you with implements of industry by which you may operate the gold mine of future possibilities.—Exchange.

Fowls in Biblical Times

Partridges are noted in the Old Testament. The fatted fowl (1 Kings, 4:23) is interpreted as either goose or duck. Cocks and hens were brought from Persia two or three centuries before Christ. A tomb at Marissa of about 200 B. C. has a good representation of a crowing cock. Sparrows and other "twittering birds" were also used for food.

COUNTRY SUFFERS THE GREATEST FIRE LOSS ON RECORD

The report of the National Board of Fire Underwriters on fire losses for the year 1926 amazed the public, created a stir in industries and was regarded with concern in fire insurance circles, when the largest fire loss in history was announced.

The large staff in the Actuarial Bureau of the National Board took one full year to compile, record, assimilate, classify and confirm each loss.

Of the stupendous fire losses suffered by the nation, New York sustained the largest, $58,476,246, while Illinois was second with $32,553,614, Pennsylvania third with $32,414,776, California fourth with $26,979,121, Massachusetts fifth with $24,260,563, and Texas sixth with $18,814,893.

The causes of fire known as strictly preventable were traced to the following sources: Defective chimneys and flues, $23,111,618; fireworks and fire-crackers, $718,942; gas, natural and artificial, $2,827,353; hot ashes, coals and open fires, $6,851,942; ignition of grease, oil, tar and asphalt, $1,880,240; matches and smoking, $30,160,233; open lights, $3,142,172; petroleum and its products, $14,978,599; rubbish and litter, $1,809,136; sparks on roof, $14,172,947; steam and hot water pipes, $395,640; stoves, furnaces and boilers and their pipes, $21,977,114; electricity, $13,783,303; explosions, $2,565,596; exposure of buildings on fire including conflagrations, $54,074,554; sparks from machinery, $8,324,071; incendiary, $2,202,492; lightning, $18,205,326; miscellaneous known causes, $1,191,737; sparks from smokestacks and bonfire combustion, $6,343,519; spontaneous combustion, $15,498,812; miscellaneous unknown causes recorded, $202,369,737. These make up the year's total of $561,980,751, which is $12,551,893 more than the preceding year, $566,574,639 more than in 1921, and $303,602,799 more than in 1916.

CANDY CRAVING SHOWS LACK OF NOURISHMENT

"Children who are undernourished often develop an abnormal craving for candy. In fact, one might offer a room full of children a plate of candy and tell fairly accurately which of the youngsters were undernourished by the eagerness with which they ate the candy."

This statement, made before the Alameda District Public Health conference by Dr. Agnes Fay Morgan, chairman of the Household Science department of the University of California, came as the result of experiments made by Dr. Morgan with supplementary feeding in the schools.

"Very few children eat as much as they should until they are 11 or 12 years old. If they are not urged to take enough wholesome food, they develop a craving for candy, which relieves their need of nourishment temporarily, but does not build up their bodies. The more they indulge this taste, the less chance they have of healthy growth," says Dr. Morgan.

Supplementary feeding in the public schools accomplish much toward balancing the children's diets, but each school should be studied as a unit and feedings based on the survey, Dr. Morgan believes. "We found that children in one of the better residential districts thrived on a supplementary feeding of orange juice, because they need the extra vitamin stimulation. In a factory district where most of the mothers worked and had no time to see that their children ate enough, orange juice was not found to be nearly as good as milk or even soda crackers, because what the children needed was actual increase in total food," she says.

AMERICA'S FOREMOST ACTOR MAKES SAN FRANCISCO DEBUT

Lionel Barrymore, elder brother of the famous royal family of the American stage, Lionel, Ethel, John, and long acclaimed America's foremost famous actor, made his first San Francisco appearance at the Lurie Theatre Monday evening, January 9, in the famous David Belasco-Tom Cushing dramatic success, "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

This unique drama was written especially for Barrymore by Belasco and presented by the great producer with Barrymore in the stellar role for more than one year in New York City.

The character of Tito Beppi, as created by the star, is said to be one of the most brilliant characterizations of the star's long and successful career.

The story has to do with the famous clown who through a nervous affliction has frequent and unexpected fits of weeping, and a rich young man who, through dissipation, breaks into uncontrollable fits of laughter. A noted nerve specialist recommends that they both fall in love. They do it—with beautiful Simmonetta, the clown's ward.

The Belasco Theatre management has surrounded the star with a cast of unusual excellence and an excellent production. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Wets are not necessarily in favor of more liquor, but they'd like a little better quality.

OUR TEACHER

This is for the teacher we love the best,
The one we love more than all the rest,
For you try to keep your temper sweet,
Even when you talk to us when our work is not neat.

Nine o'clock is when you ring the bell;
"Out with your arithmetics," to us you tell.
The minutes fly one by one,
Ten o'clock our arithmetic is done.

"Now take your history out!" That's what you always shout.
The minutes pass, they make the day;
Take them, use them, don't delay.
Now with our history we are through.

Out to recess, two by two.
Back into school we came,
Twenty-nine I will not name,
But yet the time flies on,
Just like the moon at the dawn.

And in this way the day is done,
Whether it is rain or sun.
Answer me, who would not,
From the largest to the smallest tot.

And all through life may she live this way,
Enjoying every minute of the day.
God bless her and keep her long and true,
For I need her, and many others will, too.

—Harry Coulter, Crocker Eighth Grade.

DALLAS' TELEPHONES

The city of Dallas leads all of the larger cities in the state of Texas in telephone development. For every 100 of its inhabitants Dallas has 24.6 telephones. Next to Dallas on this basis comes Galveston with 22.8 telephones per 100 population, followed by Houston with 22.3, Fort Worth with 20.9, Austin, the capital of the state, is in fifth place with 20.2, followed by Wichita Falls with 20 and San Antonio with 19.15.

Kiss No Light Matter

With Early Christians

Among the early Christians the kiss of peace was a sacred ceremony, observed upon their most solemn occasions. It was called the seal of prayer, and was a symbol of that mutual forgiveness and reconciliation which the church required, as an essential condition before anyone was admitted to the sacraments.

The Roman civilians at length took the kiss under their protection. Their code defined the nature, limits, incidents and such like of the "right of kissing."

The kiss had all the virtue of a bond, granted as a seal to the ceremony of betrothing; and if the husband-elect broke the engagement, repenting of what he had done, he surrendered a moiety of the presents received in the ceremony of betrothing, in consequence of the violence done to the modesty of the lady by a kiss.

In much later times the kiss was esteemed to be a ceremony of particular obligation. Julia, in "Two Gentlemen of Verona," after exchanging a ring with her lover, completes the contract by a kiss:
"And seal the bargain with a holy kiss."

The last instance in which the kiss formed the subject of serious regulation was when the Empress Catherine of Russia instituted assemblies of men and women to promote the cultivation of polite manners. Among the rules she directed that "no gentleman should force a kiss from or strike a woman in the assembly, under pain of exclusion."

Doctor's Long Fast in

Interests of Science

The first fast of long duration undertaken for scientific purposes, and with the possibility of imposture eliminated, was completed about fifty years ago by Doctor Tanner of New York, who went wholly without food for forty days, from noon of June 29 to noon of August 7, 1880.

During that period there is satisfactory evidence that Doctor Tanner ate no food. He drank very little water and no other liquid whatever. His weight at the beginning of his fast was 157 pounds and at its conclusion 121 pounds, showing a loss of 36 pounds, or almost a pound per day.

He consumed meat and fruit in liberal quantities at the end, showing that the old theory of this being dangerous was not true—at least not in his case.

Land of the Onion

It is said that when a ship is approaching the island of Ceylon delicious perfumes are wafted to the mariner's nostrils long before the shores come into sight, so luxuriant is the growth of flowers on the islands. Other travelers assert that a similar statement is true of the island of Bermuda; but in the modern instance the fragrance which meets the sailor's nostrils is not that of delicious flowers, but of the more humble, useful and nutritious onion.

The Bermuda farmer often raises illies for the New York Easter market, but his mainstay is the onion. The Bermuda onion is the best in the world. Nothing so good is raised in the United States. Every year we import onions from Cuba and the other West Indies, and even from so distant a place as Egypt, but no onion takes the place of that of Bermuda.

Forgot the Rule

"Grammar is a most confusing thing," remarked Cassidy to his friend. "I never can remember whether to say 'It is I' or 'It is me.'"

"I can give you a good rule on that," returned his friend. "Just say over to yourself this rhyme, 'It is I, said the spider to the fly, and there you are.'"

A few days later the friend met Mike and inquired if the rule had been of any help.

"It would have been but for wan thing," replied Cassidy. "I couldn't for the life of me remember whether your rhyme was: 'It is I, said the spider to the fly, or 'It is me, said the spider to the flea.'—Boston Transcript.

Not So Big

Hall Caine was the guest of honor at a literary dinner, and it fell to Thomas Nelson Page to introduce him in what the reporters are fond of calling "a few well-chosen sentences."

Just before rising to do so, Page passed his menu card to Caine with a request that he autograph it.

"After you have spoken," whispered Sir Hall.

"No, no—do it now," said Page. Caine obeyed, and later he asked his introducer why he had been in so great a hurry to obtain his signature.

"Well," said Page, "if you must know, it was because I wanted to be able to say truthfully that I had read something you had written."

"Knowledge" and "Wisdom"

How it comes to pass I know not, and yet it is certainly so, there is as much vanity and weakness of judgment in those who profess the greatest abilities, who take upon them learned callings and bookish employments as in any other sort of men whatever; either because more is required and expected from them, and that common defects are inexcusable in them, or rather because the opinion they have of their own learning makes them more bold to expose and lay themselves too open, by which they lose and betray themselves.—Montaigne.

Garden Idea Fostered

by English Merchant

In Piccadilly, in the center of London, the mother of gardens came into existence many years ago, according to the Christian Science Monitor. It was at Hatchard's, the well-known bookseller and publisher, in 1804, that John Wedgwood gathered his friends together and unfolded a plan to "foster and encourage every branch of horticulture" and to "collect every information respecting the cultivation and treatment of all plants and trees."

The founder of the House of Hatchard, John Hatchard, was in sympathy with every project that made for the good and enlightenment of mankind. It was a suitable place for this society, the mother of many affiliated societies, to begin its world-wide operations. The room where the first meeting took place no longer exists, as the building has been rebuilt since that time, but a portrait of John Hatchard still hangs in the comfortable lounge that forms the shop. The picture shows the intellectual nature of the man. The windows facing Piccadilly and the wooden seat that in summer time is placed in front of them carries one back to a time when the rush and noise of the London streets was less than at the present time. There is an air of leisure and other-worldliness that is very pleasant to those passersby who long to forget the hurrying feet and noisy sounds of crowded thoroughfares.

The society did not receive its royal charter till 1809, which set forth that its aim was the improvement of horticulture, ornamental as well as useful. Well has it carried out its resolutions.

Present-Day Almanac

Traced to Old Greece

Far back in the days of ancient Greece it was the custom to announce the first day of the month either through a herald or placards pasted on the city walls. These placards were known as kalends, or kolendae, from the Greek, "I call or proclaim." The book of accounts referring to the days of the year was known as a calendarium, hence the word calendar. Excavators at Pompeii have discovered a square block of marble which served the Greeks as a calendar. Each side served as a record of three months. Each month was headed by the proper sign of the zodiac, and contained astronomical, agricultural and religious information.

Tracing back the origin of the word almanac, Verstegan, the famous old lexicographer, says:

"Our ancient Saxon ancestors used to engrave on certain squared sticks about a foot in length, sometimes more, sometimes less, the courses of the moons of the whole year, whereby they always certainly tell what new moons, full moons and changes should happen, as also their festival dates; and such a carved stick they called al-mon-acht; that is to say, al-mon-heed, to wit, the regard or observation of all the moons, and hence is derived the name almanac."

Families and Happiness

I have learned that the happiest people in the world are those who are happily mated and have large families. Although they do not say, as a rule, that they are happy, I often see the envy in other people's eyes. They work hard, apparently not knowing how disagreeable are the tasks thrust on them, and without caring how much their labors made them tired. When the evening comes, they carry home the profits of their toil and lay them on the laps of the women who love them. Perhaps, somewhere in the next room, a baby is crying. I might find it disturbing. They think it the most beautiful music in the world.—Hannen Sweeter in London Express.

Times Change

The candidate dropped into town in the old driver he teamed about in the country districts in order to show that he did not feel above the common herd.

Breaking an Egg

The slightest tap against a hard surface is usually sufficient to break the shell of an ordinary egg. If, however, pressure is exerted gradually at each end of the egg it is often impossible to break it with the bare hands. The United States bureau of standard's recently decided to find out just how much pressure would be required to break an egg in this manner. A pressure of 51 pounds had to be exerted on the testing machine before the shell of an egg gave way.

Real Fresh

He had dined in a restaurant far to the north of New Orleans and felt that the excellence of the meal merited some praise.

"The finest steak I've ever tasted," he told the proprietor.

"It ought to be," was the somewhat disconcerting reply, "for it came from one of the finest two-year-old Jerseys in this section; you'd never have had steak from her if she hadn't collided with an automobile yesterday morning."

JUDGE BUCK CELEBRATES EIGHTY-FIRST BIRTHDAY

Superior Judge George H. Buck, of Redwood City, celebrated his eighty-first birthday last Wednesday by driving his own auto to the courthouse and operating his own typewriter in the chambers before court convened. The aged jurist never has needed a stenographer. Flowers and congratulatory telegrams from friends and admirers were stacked on his table. He held court as usual. Judge Buck has been superior judge in San Mateo county for thirty-seven years. For eight years previously he had served as district attorney.
